

November 4, 2015

By Hillary Reinsberg

Drinking in Midtown is usually not our first choice. But frequently, it's a necessity. And collectively, Team Infatuation has spent enough time doing it that we know where to go.

Whether you're hitting happy hour with your coworkers, grabbing cocktails after a Broadway play, or hanging out with your craft beer-loving cousin who's staying in Times Square, here's where to drink in Midtown.

Parker & Quinn

Parker & Quinn is the restaurant in the Refinery Hotel, but it's a highly popular spot for happy hour. There's a big bar area, and the "vintage" decor isn't a bad look. They also have plenty of small plates and flatbreads to go along with your drinks.

64 W. 39th St.